

ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS BROKEN OFF

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Aug. 3.—Armistice negotiations between the Poles and Russians have been broken off, according to official advice received by the French foreign office today.

The collapse is reported to have occurred when the members of the Russian delegation demanded a complete discussion of peace terms.

The Polish first and fourth armies are in full retreat, leaving a wide gap open through which the Reds are pouring, the advice to the foreign office stated.

The Polish first and fourth armies were holding the front north and northeast of Warsaw.

Their retreat is said to have opened the way to the Bug river towards which the Red forces are now advancing. The Bug river flows north of Warsaw and empties into the Vistula at Nowy Dwor, 15 miles west of the Polish capital.

The Polish envoys, according to the foreign office dispatches, informed the Russians they were not authorized to discuss peace but only armistice terms.

The Polish plenipotentiaries are said to have left for Warsaw to consult their government.

They announced that, if they obtained authority to discuss peace, they would meet the Russians in Minsk on August 4.

The Polish counter-offensive is reported to have collapsed.

MISS DUNNE NOW RED CROSS NURSE

Miss S. A. Dunne, R. N., is now the visiting Red Cross nurse for Kingston and Ulster county, and this announcement should call forth the warmest congratulations for the visiting nurse committee of the Red Cross of which Dr. Mark Offenberg is chairman.

Miss Dunne was one of the very first graduates of the training school of the Kingston City Hospital and very soon after her graduation became a government nurse, or Red Cross nurse as we now know our government nurses.

During the Spanish-American War Miss Dunne was stationed at Jacksonville, Florida, thus having seen several years of government nursing service.

During the recent war, while awaiting her assignment for overseas duty, following her acceptance for such service, Miss Dunne did much to help out in the difficult times at both the Kingston City and Dutchess hospitals.

She is very enthusiastic over the present Red Cross nursing service, feeling that there is a big field for her best services right here in the city, let alone the county. On Monday she had eight calls, and as the work calls for some bedside nursing in connection with most of the cases, all of the calls could not be made during the one day. This shows the very real need for this Red Cross activity.

Any and all physicians in town and in the county are at liberty, if in need of Miss Dunne's services, to call on Red Cross headquarters and make arrangements for her to visit the case they need her for. The telephone call is, 132, and the office in the Hasbrouck building, No. 44 Main street.

ATHLETES HAVE COLDS.

But None is in Condition to Warrant Worry.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
On Guard U. S. S. Princess Matoka at Sea, Aug. 3.—(By Wire.)—Cold, attended in some instances by a slight fever, have developed among the American athletes bound for the Olympic games since the Princess Matoka has gotten into the North Atlantic and encountered raw, chilly weather. None of the men is in serious condition and all are expected to be fit by the time the ship arrives at Antwerp.

Military drill to initiate the athletes into the evolutions of the international parade at Antwerp, is now a part of the daily routine.

The men are formed into two companies, one under Major Graves and the other under Lieutenant Vial.

They are learning the formations quickly and make a fine appearance. Many of the men served in the United States Army and are familiar with the tactics.

The lack in the better has now been repaired and the ship is making her normal speed.

Matt McGrath sustained a few bruises in a wrestling match with Paddy Ryan. Both weigh about 250 pounds and when Ryan worked a "head lock" both went to the mat with a terrific crash.

Camping at Nellyville.

Sergeant McGee, John R. Gilmour, Jr., Joseph McGee and Walter Freeman, members of the Spring Branch, N. C., are spending their vacation camping out at Nellyville, Kentucky. The boys, under the leadership of Captain Raymond McGee, have carried their own gear and are enjoying the trip.

TICKET ENDORSED BY CONVENTION

For Action by Enrolled Republican Voters at the Official Primary in September—Further Report of the Convention.

The unofficial Republican County Convention on Monday afternoon designated the following ticket which will be recommended to enrolled party voters for nomination at the September primary election:

For surrogate—George F. Kaufman of Saugerties.

For sheriff—William H. Koits of Kingston.

For coroner—Howard B. Hamilton of Wauarsing.

For superintendent of the poor—William S. Hartshorn of Plattkill.

The convention declared as Ulster county's choice for nominations, but without selecting delegates, the following:

For congressman—Charles B. Ward of Liberty, Sullivan county.

For senator—Charles W. Walton of Kingston.

Candidate's Tribute to Walton.

When the convention re-assembled at three o'clock in the afternoon, Mayor Canfield took the platform and said in part:

"The gathering reflects in part the high opinion and high esteem of the Republican party in Ulster county and the esteem of the county for Senator Wadsworth and Congressman Ward, and the demonstration which was given to them this morning was well merited and a high tribute to their worth. Their minds are tuned right to American ideals and we must have in public office at this time men whose minds and thoughts are in keeping with the best traditions and highest ideals of America. Few men are better equipped for public life than Senator Wadsworth and we know that both he and Congressman Ward have shown their capacity and ability and have exercised it with courage."

"Today a grave obligation rests on each and every one of us—an obligation greater than will rest again on men and women in this generation. We are at the turning point, and every voter must help shape the future policy of this country. We know that the Republican policy and platform are both progressive and constructive. We can win if we fuse the minds and thoughts of the voters to that policy and that platform. This county is a segment in the national circle of Republicanism, and even in the nomination of our state and county officers we must gather the greatest strength and forces which will assure success."

"In looking at the position of State Senator we see only one figure—the figure of a man who has played devotion, loyalty and fidelity to the high position he occupies. He has not only represented us well but he has become in the foremost ranks a leading figure in the Senate, and realizing that he will continue to represent us well, I take pleasure in presenting the name of Charles W. Walton." (Applause.)

On motion of ex-Sheriff Philip Schantz of Highland, the secretary was directed to cast the convention's ballot for Senator Walton, and George Garrison of Rochester and Francis C. Merritt of Kingston were appointed to escort Senator Walton to the stage.

Where Walton Stands.

Senator Walton was greeted with applause, and in responding he said: "For the high honor you have just conferred on me and I am not unmindful of the obligations it imposes, and they will be many. For there has been no time when the Republican party has been called on to perform greater or more important tasks than now. My party principles are Republican principles and my platform is that of the Republican party. I believe that it represents the principles of true Americanism, which is our first obligation as citizens and I will use my every effort to bring success to the ticket in November."

Senator Walton was heartily applauded.

A Record of Service.

When nominations for the designation for surrogate were called for, Alfred Schmid of the Twelfth ward of Kingston nominated Daniel B. Devo of that ward, and said in part:

"The Twelfth ward presents the name for the important office of surrogate of a man of mature years and broad experience, who has been connected with the office for many years and has filled the important position of clerk of the surrogate's court."

"If there is any man who has been an earnest and hardworking Republican, and devoted his time and best interests to the Republican party, it is Daniel B. Devo. He has never before come before a Republican convention seeking a nomination. In every presidential year and in every other year when he has been needed, he has gone through this county speaker on behalf of the Republican candidates. He was born in the town of Gardiner and is a son of Dr. Abram Devo, who was one of the Republican war heroes of that town. Neither he nor any member of his family have ever sought public office and since the office demands a man of broad experience and mature judgment on every one known, there is no man, who is better qualified than Mr. Devo and it gives me pleasure to present his name for your consideration."

Other Than Enrolled Republicans.

Hon. John N. Vandervort of New Paltz, in responding Mr. Devo's nomination, said in part:

"Back through the years I have known him, I have seen him freed and he has been here. Years ago in southern Ulster, there was a man named Abram D. Devo. He was a physician, a man who stood by and helped to build up the Republican party. It meant much and required much for a man to stand up and be a Republican then, but he was firm and true to his convictions. His son in the years I have known him has always been a loyal, earnest and brave Republican, and whenever his party has called on him, he has always responded, and he has always battled for the principles and candidates of our party. Although they called on him again and again, he never refused and never shirked. Does loyalty to party mean nothing. Does it mean nothing that when candidates, even though it was not easy sledding, demanded his time and efforts on their behalf, he responded and gave to the party the best of his ability? He has never been a candidate, or has he been nominated for any elective office. His friends now ask that he be nominated for surrogate."

"Perhaps it is not enough just to be loyal. Here is a man who has not only been loyal to his party and his party's candidates, but I affirm here that he is eminently qualified and if elected will make an ideal surrogate. He had for many years a large practice in the probate court, and for a number of years he occupied the position of clerk of that court, and he thoroughly knows the details of the office and the duties pertaining to it. I am not here to say any unkind word against any candidate, but only to say that here is a man who, if ever he is to receive a reward for his loyalty, should receive it now. Now is the time, if ever, because he is reaching the maturity of his manhood and if his party believes in rewarding a man for faithful service, it should do so before it is too late."

"I have practiced for a number of years in the surrogate's court before Surrogate Peter Cantine, who was one of the great surrogates of the county, before Parker, DeWitt, Carpenter, Betts, Davis and the present incumbent, and with a full knowledge of the practice there, I believe Daniel B. Devo would be a worthy successor to these men." (Applause.)

Schick Draws Them Out.

The convention this year departed from the long-established custom of calling the roll of towns and wards for nominations, and after Mr. Vandervort's speech there was a pause which lasted several minutes, until Supervisor George Schick, of the Thirtieth ward, moved that if there were no other nominations, the secretary cast the convention's ballot for Mr. Devo. Mr. Schick adding, "That'll draw them out."

Kaufman's Qualifications.

Prof. James, of the Saugerties High School, nominated George F. Kaufman of Saugerties, saying in part:

"It is a privilege to speak to an audience which gives every evidence of such large intelligence, and I have the honor to present the name of a man who is eminently qualified to perform the duties of this important office with thoroughgoing efficiency."

"It is true that he is a young man. When you look at him, you see no evidence of senility or decrepitude, but he is full of vigor, with the burning enthusiasm of a young man."

"He is qualified in other respects. Who should be our candidate is not merely a question of age, and there is not a man here but knows that the man I am about to name is abundantly qualified to perform the duties of the office. He has a splendid intellect and intelligence, and is amply trained by a liberal education. He has an accurate and comprehensive knowledge of the law, and has been eminently successful in practice."

"He has the temper of mind of one who should occupy this office which, I understand, requires a judicial temperament."

"He is an American. Nobody questions his thoroughgoing 100 per cent Americanism. Three years ago when his country needed young men of vigor and virility, this young man offered his services to his country. He did not seek influential friends to get him an office with big pay and little service, but he enlisted as a private at $20 a month."

"He is a Republican, of course, a loyal Republican, and if it is true that service to party constitutes a claim to reward, he should have it. Personally I am not keen for rewarding for party service anyone who is not qualified, but this young man is qualified."

"I understand that Saugerties has contributed about one-fifth of the Republican majority of Ulster county, and I think it about time that Saugerties receives some recognition."

"There is splendid material for officers in the Republican party of Ulster county, but it is not confined to the city of Kingston; outside the city may be found men who are as well qualified. Not during the past four years has any Republican of Saugerties held public office. Are Senators and Representatives to be satisfied merely with promoting the ambitions of men who live in Kingston city?"

"My candidate has all the qualifications for the surrogate's office, personal and professional, and this is the time when delegates should take this important office into serious consideration and nominate George F. Kaufman." (Applause.)

Ex-Superior W. Kelly Shook of Elmville seconded Mr. Kaufman's nomination.

Representative Lawrence The Standard.

Harry H. Flemming of the Eighth ward came directly to the platform to nominate Surrogate Gill, and was greeted with prolonged applause. He said in part:

"I am not, I hope, taking undue advantage of the attention by coming to this platform, but I want to say to each and every one of you whom it instead of telling you about it because otherwise you would not be here."

"I came before you as a representative of every district of this county, to say you are about to nominate a candidate for the most important office in the county. The reason that it is the most important office is, that almost every man or woman who has had during the course of their experience some business with the surrogate's court, and there is only a small part of the audience here that has not had some experience with any other court."

"The surrogate's court is the people's court. It is here that every man, woman or child who has accumulated a dollar must have his estate passed on by the court. For that reason it needs a man of judicial mind, and above all else, a man of unquestioned integrity."

"This is a judicial office, not a political one. You nominate justices of the supreme court for a term of fourteen years, and if they make good, you renominate them for a term of fourteen years. If they can serve it, but at any rate, you renominate them if they have made good after fourteen years, and this holds high the standards of judicial office. But when you bargain judicial office for partisanship or for political rewards, you bring down that standard."

"Having said that, I call your attention to Walter N. Gill. He was born in Kingston and he has practiced law here for a number of years, in the course of which he has come in contact with a large clientele, and I defy any man to stand up here or elsewhere, and say that Walter N. Gill is not a man of the strictest integrity and of sound judgment. In the pre-convention campaign, I have heard many things said about many men, but I have yet to hear anyone say that Surrogate Gill has not been absolutely honest, a man of integrity."

"While it is true that lawyers seldom agree, the bar of Ulster county has come out almost to a man in signing a statement which sets forth in unmistakable language that they want Walter N. Gill for Surrogate. That petition was signed willingly by men who know his undisputed integrity and who wouldn't sign it unless they believed it."

Another War Record.

"Reference has been made here to service of men in our late war. Surrogate Gill couldn't serve as a soldier in uniform, but he turned over the surrogate's office to the use of two district boards, and day by day and night he helped them perform their duties and exacting duties that were required, and he did this without one cent of reward or hope thereof. He couldn't go to war himself, but he had two sons. You have heard that one son has served under him in the surrogate's office, but have you been told that both sons served in the ranks as soldiers? When it comes to war records, the Gill family from first to last has made an enviable record."

"I have heard it whispered, and so have you, that he has served long enough. I say here and now that the man with such a record never can serve long enough."

"For every dollar that Ulster county has paid Walter N. Gill he has turned back in what makes an honest and thoroughgoing official, three for one."

"Served long enough? Sixteen counties of New York state today have surrogates who are serving their third term; they are judicial officers who did their duty. It is to be said that Ulster county has turned down a man for a re-nomination, he so richly deserves?"

"Instead of casting reflections on Walter N. Gill, Republicans should be proud that there is a man who can serve and has served six days a week, every week of the year, and in giving him this nomination you are simply reflecting credit on the Republican party of Ulster county." (Applause.)

Overworking a Word.

Andrew Wright Lent of Highland, in seconding Surrogate Gill's nomination, said in part:

"I would feel I was doing myself an injury if I did not repeat the statement I made six years ago before a Republican county convention when I stated that Surrogate Gill was one of the best surrogates Ulster or any other county ever had. If integrity and honesty count for anything, this convention will renominate him, and it is my pleasure to second his nomination." (Applause.)

Lucius C. Tuckerman of Milton, in seconding Surrogate Gill's nomination, said in part:

"This is a political convention. That name has a hypnotic effect on the people of Ulster county, and we have been told repeatedly that we are the representatives of the Republican voters of the county. If you will look back over the proceedings since 11 o'clock this morning, you will find there has been a strong tendency to overwork the fact that we are such representatives. There is no man here but who knows that the surrogate is the most important office in the county."

"Let us forget for a few minutes that we are politicians, but think what we will be in our homes of business tomorrow morning. We will be lawyers, farmers, business men. In our own business, would it pay us to kick out a valuable man and get in an untried man? Would we do it? Would you? Would I?"

"Isn't it a fact that sixty per cent of the people of Ulster county, if they were asked at this moment who they want for surrogate, would say they want Walter N. Gill? And the it instead of telling you about it because otherwise you would not be here."

WILL RAZE OLD RONDOUT LIGHT

Understood That Government Will Start Work of Demolishing It This Summer—Some Time Ago Government Wanted to Sell, But Received No Bids on Structure.

It is understood that the government is seriously contemplating the demolishing of the old Rondout creek lighthouse this summer. The old light was succeeded by the present modern structure erected at the mouth of the Rondout creek, which has been in use for several years past.

The old light is located some distance from the mouth of the creek, and its location was one of the reasons why it was decided to erect a more modern structure in the present location, which is much better adapted for that purpose. Shortly after the new lighthouse was completed and placed in use the government advertised for bids for the old structure, but from what could be learned at the time there were no bidders.

If the building had been sold it would have been necessary for the purchaser to have moved it to another location as the government would not allow it to remain where it was for fear that at night the lights from it would have a tendency to confuse navigators on the Hudson river.

The old structure is solidly built of stone. It is somewhat smaller than the present lighthouse, which is more modern and up-to-date. It is said that the work of razing the old light will be done by government employees, and that it will be completed by fall.

CONVENTION GOES TO SEE THE RACES

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Convention Hall, Saratoga Springs, Aug. 3.—After perfecting organization and listening to the keynote speech delivered by Temporary Chairman Frank H. Mott, of Jamestown, the Democratic state unofficial convention recessed its first session at 12:45 o'clock until 8 o'clock tonight.

The convention may at that time adopt a platform which will be put in final shape for submission at a meeting of the resolutions committee this afternoon.

The recess was taken to enable delegates to attend the races.

The first session was marked by an attempt on the part of Mayor George R. Lunn of Schenectady, whose candidacy for United States Senator fails to meet the approval of Tammany Hall, to prevent adoption of rules which he claimed would prohibit debate on the floor of all resolutions presented. The attempt is believed to presage a determined fight by the Schenectady man against the convention adopting a resolution to "suggest" a ticket, a form of procedure declared by Mayor Lunn to be "camouflage." His opposition, however, was quickly overcome.

Governor Smith, who has been a party to most of the conferences of leaders did not attend the opening session but mention of his name by Chairman Mott brought thunderous and prolonged applause.

President Wilson and the National Democratic nominees were given like ovations.

The convention will last over until tomorrow.

It is alleged by the girl's mother that she left Kingston with Price about six weeks ago. Since then the couple have been living in a rooming house in Schenectady. Price is married and has a wife in Oneonta, according to the police. Monday evening the state troopers called up police headquarters here and asked them to notify the girl's mother. The troopers took the couple to Oneonta this morning.

PONZI PAYS ALL COMERS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Boston, Aug. 3.—The worst run which Charles Ponzi, "get-rich-quick" financier has yet been called upon to face, started today.

More than 500 note holders, anxious to get their money back, lined up outside the Pie Alley entrance to the office of the Securities Exchange Company. A detail of police officers was on hand to keep the crowd in a long line which extended out to City Hall avenue and was constantly increasing.

A cueer went up from the waiting men and women when the doors were opened shortly after 2 o'clock and the first group of ten or fifteen were allowed to enter.

Payments were resumed as usual, slowly and methodically, the employees, although radiating confidence in their employer, being handicapped by the closeness of their quarters.

Ponzi was not on hand at the opening of the office, but the disburser clerk was as confident as ever that he was fully able to meet all demands.

It was announced that Ponzi intends to re-open for regular business on Thursday, having notified one of his branch managers to that effect. This decision was made, it was stated, when the audit of the books of the company failed to show anything criminal and the post office inspectors were also unable to find anything illegal.

District Attorney Pelletier had clashed with Attorney General Allen, interviewed in New York, where he is attending the Knights of Columbus convention. Pelletier declared that any failure on the part of the attorney general to obtain information on the case in his possession is Mr. Allen's own fault. He declared the investigation was taken from his hands by Allen. Further friction developed when Edwin L. Frida, another federal attorney, declared he would not give up Ponzi's books to an auditor employed by the attorney general until he finishes with them.

It is expected that there will be one hundred or more in the party from Lenox and Dutchess county.

CASINO CROWDED

As Never Before at Houser Benefit Dance.

The Casino at Kingston Point Park probably never held such a large crowd as attended the benefit dance given Monday evening by the Progressive Social Club for the mother of Thomas Houser, one of the ball players killed in the Staatsburgh auto accident. At times it was hardly possible to walk, let alone dance, and many were unable to gain admission. Shurtler's orchestra provided its usual excellent music and the dancers good naturedly accepted the crowded condition. The club's committee wishes to heartily thank Daniel Murphy, Benjamin Furman, Al King, Curt Shurtler and all others who so generously aided in making the dance the means of securing for Mrs. Houser a substantial sum of money, the exact amount of which is not yet known.

REMINISCENCES OF OLD DUTCH CHURCH

Repairs to Steeple Bring to Mind Its Construction By Former Kingston Resident Nearly 70 Years Ago.

Jeremiah Marsh of Jersey City, N. J., who had been spending several days at the home of John E. Ryder on Wall street, returned home today with Mrs. Marsh, who is a sister of Mr. Ryder.

Present repairs to the steeple of the First Dutch Church, which are attracting much attention, brought forth some interesting reminiscences from Mr. Marsh, who is eighty-seven years old and who helped to paint the present steeple and its predecessor after its erection in the early 50's.

Mr. Marsh began work as an apprentice painter in the early 50's, at a weekly wage of $2.50 per week, out of which he boarded and clothed himself. His apprenticeship was for four years, but in his fourth year his wages were increased $1 per week and after he became a journeyman painter he received $1.50 per day, which was the wage paid also to carpenters. Masons at that time received $1.75 a day. There was no overtime then, the work-day was ten hours long, or a 50-hour week, and the mechanics worked all day Saturday.

The erection of the First Dutch Church, on its present site was begun in 1852, and was completed in 1854. Hallenbeck & Brink were the general contractors and Elias Van Nostrand had the contract for the masonry work. Shop-made doors and windows were unknown at that time, and all the doors, windows and sashes in the present edifice are hand-made. The walls of the church are of solid stone and they are plastered on the inside. The stone selected for the edifice was Ulster county bluestone, which was hauled from Jockey Hill. The woodwork in the church is principally hemlock, which was hauled from the town of Shandaken and was known locally as Shandaken mahogany.

The present steeple of the church is the second which was erected, the first steeple having been blown down one night during a terrific wind-storm. The first steeple reached to a height of 210 feet from the ground, and was practically the same size and shape as the present spire. The timber used in the first spire were twisted and turned during the wind-storm which brought about the disastrous downfall, and when it fell, it fell over the roof, lengthwise of the church, and its "pineapple" top grazed the front floor of the present parsonage, now occupied by Dr. E. D. B. Loughran, on Main street.

Kingston during the 50's was visited by many severe windstorms and it was only a short while later that the steeple of the Fair Street Reformed Church, then known as the Second Reformed Church, also blew down, during the daytime. It was never replaced.

Within a short time after the spire of the First Dutch Church had blown down, work was begun to replace it and the present spire has remained firm in all the years since. The contract was awarded to the late John P. Folant, who was assisted by Tunis Haulenbeck, who had been one of the contractors for the original building.

Mr. Marsh was particularly interested in the painting of the two spires, in which work he was engaged. Both steeples were covered with shingles. When the original steeple was painted, a scaffolding was erected around it, from which the painters worked. When the present spire was erected, holes were cut in the sides large enough for a man to crawl through. When the spire was to be painted, a man crawled from one of such holes near the top of the spire to the top of the spire and there fastened an iron ring from which ropes were suspended. At the end of these ropes was a crockery crate, large enough to hold two men, and the basket in which they stood was swung to different positions as the painting progressed.

The crockery crate, or basket, which was suspended from the top of the spire for the use of the painters, was of the kind used at that time and for many years thereafter for packing crockery. It was strongly made of tough wood. The painting of the first spire was done under the direction of the late John Balle, who was a native of England. Besides Mr. Balle, Mr. Marsh recalls only the late Tunis Haulenbeck and the late Joseph Chip as among the men who worked with him. An Italian painter named John Gennaro had the contract for painting the present spire and came to Mr. Marsh to do the work, he at that time having completed his apprenticeship.

The interior of the edifice was frescoed by Pedretti, an Italian painter of New York city, and on that part of the wall of the front of the church, now covered by the big organ, was painted a representation of the Ark of the Covenant.

Mr. Marsh left the painting business to enter the employ of the late John C. Broadhead, who conducted a large store in the Voorhes building, now occupied by Brown & Broadhead on Clinton avenue near Albany avenue. The Broadhead & Broadhead Railroad, now the Ulster & Delaware Railroad, had been completed in the early 60's, and Mr. Marsh took charge of the grocery trade for Mr. Broadhead as far as Big Indian. He left Kingston 47 years ago but had frequently returned to visit here. As he enjoys excellent health and looks not over 70 years old, it is hoped by his many friends in this city that he will return often for many years to come.

Mr. Marsh recalls many interesting incidents of Kingston nearly half a century ago. The Wallkill Valley Railroad Company was being constructed then. The old horse-car line, which was the predecessor of the present Kingston City trolley line, operated between Kingston and Rondout, and the toll gate near the city hall was then in charge of the late Richard Van Oanbeck. Prior to the horse-car line, there had been an omnibus line, and the cars first used were omnibus bodies which were brought here from Jersey City, N. J. There were but few houses along Broadway, and Washington avenue contained no houses, having just been opened. Mr. Marsh has watched with pride the growth of Kingston and believes that the future holds bright prospects for this entire community.

CONDENSED CLASSICS

THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS

By JOHN BUNYAN

Condensation by Basil King

used a dreadful fight between Christian and the fiend, during which the fiend was like to have won the Pilgrim had it not been for the weapons furnished him from their armoury by the fair damsel in the castle Beautiful. The battle being over there came a hand with some of the leaves of the Tree of Life, wherewith Christian stanch'd his wounds.

Now, at the end of this valley was another still more dread called the Valley of the Shadow of Death. On its right was a very deep ditch into which the blind have led the blind in all ages, while on the left was a dangerous quag, the which if even a good man were to fall into it he could find no bottom for his foot to stand on. Good Christian was the more put to it, seeing that the pathway was exceedingly narrow, and as he went on he sighed bitterly. About the middle of this valley was there also the mouth of Hell, out of which came dismal flame and smoke. When the fiends came up to this entrance he cried out in a vehement voice, "I will walk in the strength of the Lord God," wherewith they gave back.

Having passed through this valley he came up with his friend Faithful, who had, though Christian knew it not, followed him out of the City of Destruction. Then was there much discourse between the two Pilgrims as to the perils through which they had come, with faithful telling of his escape from Madam Wanton, as well as from the old man with the three daughters, the Lust of the Flesh, the Lust of the Eyes and the Pride of Life. Also did Faithful tell of his encounters with Arrogance, Pride and Worldly-glory. But the worst of them all was with Shame, a bold-faced fellow who would never have done speaking against all good men and things.

Then I saw in my dream that they presently came to the town of Vanity, where is a fair called Vanity Fair. Here is there at all times much noise and folly, with the buying and selling of such foolish wares as have given the town its fame. The people of the fair, taking the Pilgrims for outlandish men and bedlams, made a great gazing at them. Likewise were they not a little amused that Christian and Faithful, setting very light by all their merchandise, did speak exhortingly. Much hubbub did follow thereon, during which the Pilgrims were cast into jail. At a convenient time they were brought forth to trial before the Lord Hategood, witness being given against them by such base fellows as Envy, Superstition and Pickthank. Among the jurors were Mr. Nogood, Mr. Malice, Mr. Lovelust and suchlike, by whom good Faithful was condemned. After much persecution they burned him to ashes at the stake, wherewith I saw in my dream that a chariot with horses carried him up to the Celestial Gate by the nearest way.

As for Christian He that rules all things released him from prison, so that he went on his way in company with one Hopeful, who had followed him from that town. Soon they came to a great fortress called Doubting Castle, the owner of which was Giant Despair, who took them prisoners. Now Giant Despair had to his wife a woman named Diffidence. So when he was gone to bed he told her what he had done, to wit that he had taken a couple of prisoners, and asked her what he should do with them. Her counsel was that he should advise them to make away with themselves. So when morning was come he goes to them with a very surly manner, telling them that, as they were never like to get out of his dungeon, they should end themselves with knife, halberd or poison. When they desired him to let them go he looked very ugly upon them, and rushing at them had doubtless made an end to them himself, but that he fell in a fit to which he was subject, and lost the use of his hand.

Thus escaping from Giant Despair, they came to the Delectable Mountains, where met them certain shepherds, Knowledge, Experience, Watchful and Sincere, who took them by the hand and had them to their tents. Also did they lead them forth to the top of a high hill called Clear, from which they might spy the Celestial Gate through a perspective glass.

Then I saw in my dream that Christian and Hopeful, going down the mountains and passing through the country of Conceit, got over to a land called the Enchanted Ground, and thus into the country of Beulah, whose air was sweet. They way lying directly through it, they sojourned themselves there, listening to the singing of birds and seeing the flowers appear in the earth.

Here they had a distant view of the City of Zion, which was built of pearls and precious stones, and the streets paved with gold. Also I saw that as they went on there met them two men in raiment that shone. "You have but two difficulties more to meet," said they, "and then you are in the City."

Now I further saw that betwixt them and the Gate was the River of Death. There was no bridge over it, and the river was deep. At sight thereof the Pilgrims were much staggered, asking if there was no other way. Being told there was none they addressed themselves to the water.

Having entered it Christian began to sink, but Hopeful cried: "Be of good cheer, my brother, I feel the bottom." But as for Christian a great darkness and horror fell upon him, in which he was troubled by blasphemies and evil spirits. Hopeful, therefore, had much ado to keep his friend's head above water, repeating to him the words of the psalm, "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee." Then I saw that Christian was carried to the City of Zion. Then I

HARDING SPENDS A BUSY DAY

By Telegram to The Freeman
Marion, Ohio, Aug. 3.—Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for president, was in another busy day today going over reports regarding campaign activities which are pouring in upon him by mail and telegraph, and in conferring with Republican leaders.

Senator Harry S. New of Indiana, who is in charge of the Speakers' Bureau of the Republican Campaign Committee and Harry M. Daugherty, Harding pre-convention manager, were among those scheduled to confer with him.

The senator was also to complete the address he will deliver to a delegation from Wayne county, Ohio, tomorrow. He and his advisers were said to be planning to give a real impetus to his front porch campaign by having him deliver a series of speeches here in the near future, which would have the kind of a "punch" to them his Democratic opponent could not sidestep.

It was also said that the senator felt "greatly encouraged" by the reports he had received regarding the favorable reception of his speech of acceptance throughout the country and by "other indications of a re-united Republican party" swinging in behind his candidacy.

At the Harding headquarters here the statement was also made that Senator Borah of Idaho and other progressive Republican leaders were already engaged in campaigning actively for the Republican ticket and that the rank and file of progressives everywhere "were falling in line for Harding and Coolidge."

Thought Horse Shoe Lucky.
The belief in the luck-bringing power of the horseshoe attained its greatest diffusion at the end of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century. Lord Nelson had a horseshoe nailed to the mast of the Victory; and in many towns it was not unusual to see half of the houses with horseshoes fastened over the door.

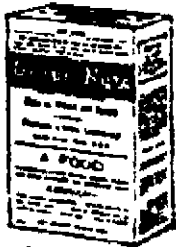

Honesty
Honesty is not the best policy. It isn't any kind of policy. It's a virtue practiced for its own sake without regard for profits. Those who refrain from stealing because thieves and in jail are not honest. They are merely discreet.—Robert Quillen in Saturday Evening Post

BETTER MAN KNOW.

May Present McAdoo's Name to Convention For Senate.

A dispatch to The Sun and New York Herald from Saratoga says, James A. Betts of Kingston, formerly supreme court justice, came in today with a boom for William G. McAdoo for United States senator. He went among the leaders, including Mr. Murphy, and, in spite of the protestations of the leaders that there was no leading being done, he sounded the praises of the former Secretary of the treasury industriously.

"I believe that if this conference—it is not a convention"—said Mr. Betts, does the right thing it will suggest the name of Mr. McAdoo for the senate."

Some thought, that, said Norman E. Mack, national committee man from New York.

Mr. Betts, who is a delegate, said he might go so far as to suggest Mr. McAdoo's name himself when his county, Ulster, is called some significant place in the source of the McAdoo boom when it is recalled that Roscoe Irwin, appointed collector of internal revenue by Mr. McAdoo, is the Democratic leader in Ulster. Tammany has had no use for Mr. McAdoo politically for some time, but might be willing to do almost anything to win support for the state ticket. It is felt, however, that since Mr. Murphy beat the McAdoo forces in San Francisco, he will be able to dispose of them handily on his own stamping ground. For this reason Mr. McAdoo's candidacy for senator does not loom as a strong probability.

There seemed today, in fact, to be a swing back toward Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker for United States senator. He wants the nomination, but he says he is willing to abide by the verdict of the leaders and what they think is best for the organization and the ticket.

Ornamental Thimble.
At one time apart from the shape which is imperative "thimbles" were decorated with all kinds of ornaments. At the time these were of course, designated more for ornament than use, when it was the fashion to play "at five work," according to the Irish World. Ladies in our grandmothers' days besides seeing to the household and personal linen generally worked in delicate material in silks and satins when a snifter thimble was brought into play and used with some of the witchery of the (an.
